'CURLING' INDIA ON THE INTERNATIONAL SPORTS MAP

Tell us something about the game?

Curling has been described as the "Roaring Game", with the "roar" coming from the noise of a granite stone as it travels over the ice. The exact origins of the game, however, are unclear, but curling is widely believed to be one of the world's oldest team sports. Curling is generally acknowledged to be one of the fastest-growing international winter sports.

So, how and when did this journey begin?

It all started when myself along with 3 other colleagues established the Indian Curling Association in the year 2010. The Indian Curling Federation has been very well recognised by World Curling Federation – in fact they have been encouraging us to develop the Curling game culture in India. The Indian Curling Federation very soon will come under Indian Olympic Association.

For how long you've been playing this sport?

For more than 4 years now. I officially decided to participate in the tournament upon receiving an invitation from the World Curling Federation.

How does it feel to represent India on an international forum?

It was definitely one of the most proudest moments for me to represent my country and my company on an international forum. Myself, being the only Indian player competing with countries like Canada, Russia, Sweden and all other European countries was definitely an experience.

Curling is a very unusual form of sport, rather uncommon for India. How did you conquer your interest in this?

I have always been associated with various sports and have been an athlete throughout. The fact that the weather condition in India do not support a sport like curling to take place, Indians are not trained into this. What drove me to practice and take part in the sport was the challenge to compete with the European countries.

What are the skills required for this sport?

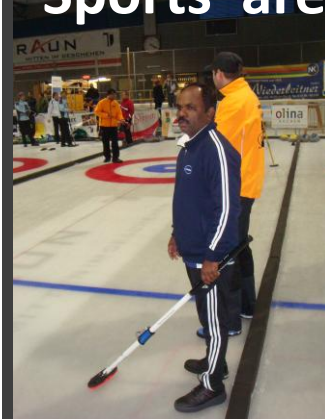

Flexibility, Concentration, Experience and understanding of the game.

Your next mission?

I am aiming for the Asia Pacific Tournament in 2013 followed by Olympics in 2014. The goals if you see are unlimited..
